Coroner Rules Christian Brando Died Of Pneumonia

11 April 2008 | WENN

Marlon Brando's son Christian died of pneumonia, the Los Angeles County Coroner's office has concluded.

Christian Brando, the eldest son of the late Godfather actor, passed away in January at a Los Angeles hospital at the age of 49.

An initial autopsy listed the cause of death as deferred, pending results of toxicology tests to establish whether Brando had prescription or other drugs in his system and whether a medical condition was involved.

But on Friday, the Los Angeles County Coroner's Office assistant chief Ed Winter revealed no drugs or medication of consequence were found in Brando's system.

Winter said, "He died of pneumonia."

CHRISTIAN BRANDO DID NOT HAVE AIDS: WHAT REALLY KILLED HIM

Just to set the record straight: There have been many hastily written reports that Christian Brando died from AIDS related pneumonia, and that is NOT the case. He died from ARDS- Acute Respiratory Distress Syndrome. Maybe that one letter of difference caused the error. Christian's father Marlon Brando died from a similar respiratory disorder. Unfortunately, the battle over Christian's estate continues…

BRANDO HAD PNEUMONIA

The Los Angeles County Coroner's office has determined that pneumonia was the cause of death for Christian Brando, son of Hollywood star Marlon Brando, a spokesman for the agency said on Friday.

Brando, eldest son of the Oscarwinning actor, died at a Los Angeles hospital in January at the age of 49 and medical examiners investigated the death at his family's request. An autopsy was conducted at the time but results were held pending return of toxicology tests.

" He died of pneumonia," Ed Winter, assistant chief of the Los Angeles County Coroner's Office, told Reuters.

Winter said there were no drugs or medications of consequence found in Brando's system and that he was not aware of any other contributing factors.
